Images, I see symptoms no reflexions* 2017

with Juno Meinecke (vocals) and Felix Leon Westner (beats)

Full HD, 5:21 min

The music video *Images, I see symptoms no reflexions, was created in collaboration with Juno Meinecke, filmmaker, who did vocals and Felix Leon Westner, artist, who did beats, uses images filmed by a drone flying over Gropius Stadt, a housing project in Berlin that in 70s and 80s due to the Berlin wall and shortage of housing became a socially troubled area. Today the area is in an upwards trend and is on it's way to being considered a cultural heritage of modernism and its residents probably will have to leave at some point soon, due to the increased attractiveness of the place. In contrast to the decidedly technological images, the formal proximity to pop music videos and the historical background of the ›motive‹, the lyrics work with quotations by authors (like Lydia Davis and Joan Didion) who voiced physiological and psychological and therefore: social symptoms of their times. Their words produce a different, less historical ›integrated‹ narration. But (hi)story nevertheless.
